

Prospect of Multi Purpose Forest Trees Research and Development

Yetti Heryati and Rina Bogidarmanti

Researcher of Centre for Plantation Forest Research and Development
Jl Gunung Batu No. 5, Bogor, West Java.
Email: yeti_silvik@yahoo.co.id

ABSTRACT

Indonesia has tropical rain forests. Its have thousands botanical species that have multi benefits. Besides its wood, that type gets to be utilized for food, biofuel and pharmaceutical. Some type among those is Nyamplung (Calophyllum spp.), Kemiri (Aleurites moluccana Wild.), Saga Pohon (Adenantha pavonina L.), Kesambi (Schleichera oleosa) and Lemo (Litsea cubeba). Nowadays, nyamplung, saga hutan and kesambi by and large planted for need to rehabilitate land, meanwhile kemiri already there are many is cultivated haven't a lot of acknowledged another benefit besides for food plant source. With the various benefit which can be resulted by those species that type have good prospect to be developed in Indonesia in order to increase society income and State foreign exchange. Therefore this information can be used as reference for further research activity and its development.

Key words: kesambi, kemenyan, kemiri, nyamplung, research and development , saga hutan.