

HEADLINES

Objectives

The objectives of this symposium are to discuss the issues, concepts, approaches, methodologies, and role of sustainability science and research in bridging the implications of climate change and human well-being. Discover the opportunities of climate change using the concept of sustainability science will be the main purpose. In addition, the symposium also aims at providing any research gains from trans-disciplinary field necessary to re-frame the future needs in strengthening the role of sustainability science and research.

BACKGROUNDOBJECTIVES